#2. Advanced Digital Moviemaking Youth & Teen Summer Camp

This camp is designed for older youth and younger teens to collaborate on more sophisticated movie projects while learning advanced writing and digital video production skills and on-camera performance techniques. In today's evolving technological atmosphere, many young people gain valuable skills with video production and moviemaking in their everyday lives, and this camp will help them advance to the next level to produce more professional movie productions. Campers build on prior experience in video production that they may have acquired through other arts programs, school instruction or homework, or even through the making of "home-movie" productions. The camp closes with a public screening to showcase the work for friends and family, and each student receives a DVD copy of all projects completed in the workshop.

Camp Hours: 10 a.m. to 3 pm., Monday through Friday

Cost: $400 for the 2-week camp

Students will work hands-on to create projects and acquire the foundational skills common to animators in the various fields of entertainment, graphic design, and fine arts. Comfort with drawing will be helpful but is not required.
